

The Night of the Dead

On a Friday night with a full moon, there was a ritual happening in Cuba, in a lab underground.

There was a main scientist called Conor and Dylan they were studying a virus Francesco when they injected the virus, Francesco went aggressive his skin went pale, his tongue went black, he wasn't human any more, he had turned into a zombie.

Then it started to spread through the underground lab, but Dylan gets infected and Conor escapes out of the lab.

All the Zombies start running after Conor one grabs his leg and he kicks it away and he keeps running out of the underground and through the jungle.

Two days later it has spreader through Cuba and went to the Caribbean islands Jamaica, its gone on a plane and heading towards central america billions have been infected. Half the population in the world have become infected and turned into zombies.